LOWE SYNDROME TRUST

I am delighted to welcome you here this evening to the Mandarin Oriental on behalf of the Lowe Syndrome Trust.

Since I was approached in early 2000 when the charity was formed, and asked to become a Trustee, I have seen the amazing efforts that have resulted in the Trust awarding research grants to four UK projects - Great Ormond Street Hospital, Imperial College London, University College London and Dundee University and three in the USA.

We all hope that this research will result in better treatments and in the longer term a cure for boys affected by the disease which affects the brain, eyes, kidneys, bones and muscles – resulting in a short life expectancy.

All of this has been possible through fundraising events such as this evening – so I thank you once again for your support and hopefully your generosity!!
