“I have been a Trustee with the Lowe Syndrome Trust since it was founded almost eight years ago and am enormously proud of its achievements in raising funds to support medical research into this most heartbreaking children’s disease. Due to the enormous success of our last event organised by Three’s A Crowd which raised funding to support a most vital research project at Imperial College London, we will continue our partnership with them and know they will put on another spectacular evening on May 10th. We hope to raise at least £100,000 which will fund another new Lowe project in the hope of better treatments and eventually a cure of Lowe Syndrome.”

Lowe Syndrome Trust Trustee, Jonathan Ross
