

Halloween Party @ Madam Tussauds November 2002

Celebrities and over 320 guests turned up in force to support the Lowe Syndrome Trust Halloween party at Madame Tussauds on Thursday evening, helping to raise a record £25,000 for the charity for medical research.

Apart from Tussauds attractions such as David Beckham, Tom Jones, Piers Brosnan, Kylie Minogue real celebrities included TV presenter Tris Payne, Heart FM DJ Johnathan Coleman, Danny Baker, Vanessa Feltz and gameshow host and auctioneer for the evening Les Dennis. Drinks and canapes were served by Clare's Kitchen.

The gala evening commenced with guests arriving via the "spirit of London" ride, and a champagne reception with statue artists that startled the guests by suddenly moving, magicians, a chamber orchestra and Hollywood Casino.

Guests danced and sang ABBA songs with the fabulous FABBAGIRLS with more dancing and women swooning over TONY HADLEY. The evening ended with more

The trust would especially like to thank the helpers, celebrities and performers, the companies and sponsors who donated auction items such as: EMC Computers, CNT & Bi-Tech, M&S, Waitrose, Marriot, Hyatt, Monarch Scheduled Flights, Kylie, Liz Hurley, the Beckhams and the artist Carol Payne.
